

Plague

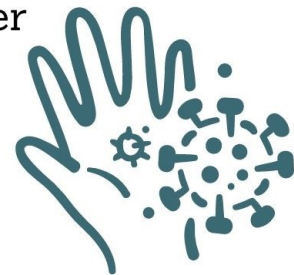

Far in the east
A monster awakens from its slumber
Searching prey in the small civilization
It was invisible, yet it close to human

As the world spinning
It expands its territory
From one land to another
Across the ocean fast as the wind

Humans are told to obey the rule
Cover their mouth
Cleansing their hand
Stay away from their kind
It's the only way to slow down the monster

Yet, humans are a fool
In their eye, the monster never exist
They blinded by lies and deception
No matter how many death has spread, the mind tight its lock

Among the fear, the courage one step up
Dare the challenge the death
Sacrifice themselves to save one another
This is their mission

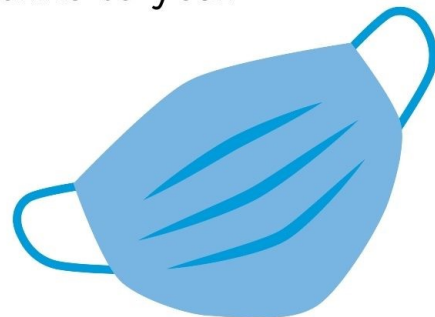

But, should it end this way?
Why is it always like this?
It's enough...
Today... tomorrow...and forever

The path that can save a single life
Be brave, don't hesitate
With two injections
The monster will not target you

Listen to the authority
Spread the truth, not the lie
Stay where you are
It is still lurking outside

Days turn to months, months turns to year
The monster has grew tired
Sigh of relief
However, take it slowly

Who know what future hold
Another monster, maybe
By the time it become real
We, human already prepared for that